Education is the agency of progress—the instrument of social mobility. It is today the most important secular force, not only in America, but in the entire world.

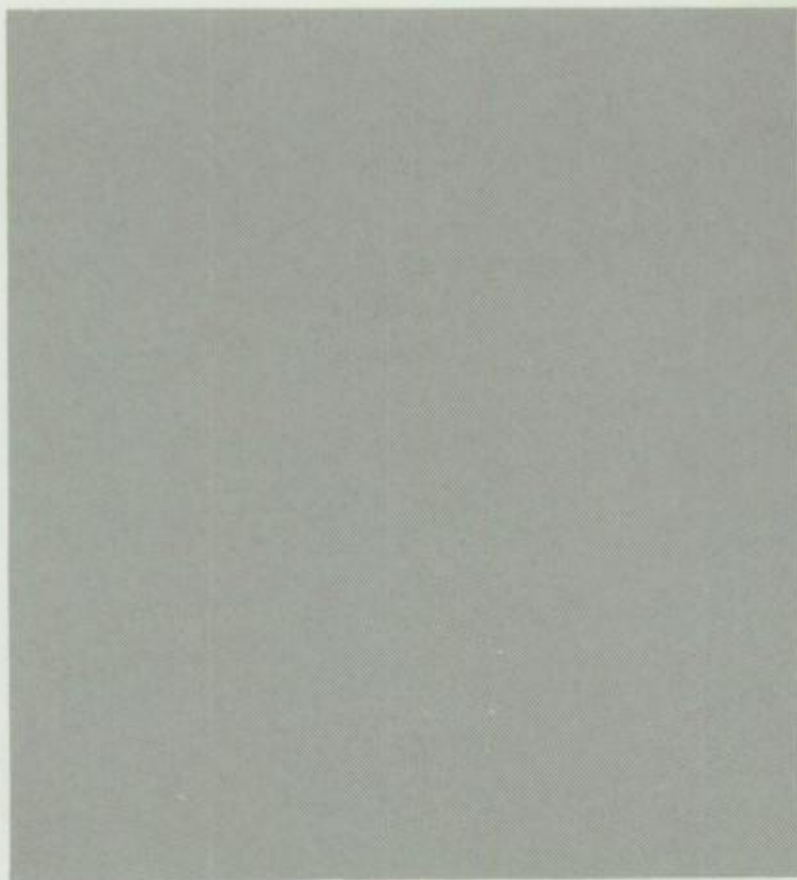

If this country is to fulfill its destiny, each of you must become a contributing part of the future, the most promising era in the history of mankind. To inherit this station, you must be prepared to exercise a more profound intelligence than any generation in history. The possibilities of preparing yourselves for this inheritance are before you.

It is our sincere hope that the years in North Attleboro High School will serve to light the way for your continuing education.

The theme of your Yearbook "Lighting Our Way," brings to mind a vision of the lamp of knowledge which has been a perennial symbol of education, but you must never consider yourself educated. Education is a life long process, and certainly is the best way of lighting your pathway into the future.

OUR JOURNAL — CASE #1961

We entered North High as young Freshman detectives. Our assignment was to raise money for discovering the way to a successful graduation. Our first clue, the cake sale spurred us on. The chief investigators on the case were: Bob Gurthrie, Fred Stevens, Jay Stevens, and Kevin Thorsell.

Encouraged by our academic standing, we confidently entered our Sophomore phase of the case. Our next achievement was unlocking the "Green Door" for Saint Patrick's Day. Finding the most clues were: Bob Gurthrie, Marsha Sutherland, Lee Carpenter, and Mike McWeeney.

The case became more involved. As we progressed to the junior level, we rocked the school with our Sadie Hawkins Dance. Then "Here Comes the Circus" paraded across the stage. It was murder! The class detectives unearthed the last clue with our junior prom "Blue Hawaii," complete with palms and pineapples. Lynne Peirce reigned elegantly. Heading the force were Phil Tobey, Mary Ellen Mulligan, Lee Carpenter, and Al Daggett.

The last phase of the case was the most difficult. Clues came fast and furious in the form of lucrative football dances. The senior play was a venture into the unknown, for we found "The Perfect Idiot" a grand success. The lights dimmed for a romantic "Wonderland by Night," as colored stars and snowflakes decorated the winter setting. Mary Ellen Mulligan carried off the honors as our senior queen. A little sadness and a little joy were felt as we planned for our Senior week and graduation exercises. Summing up all our clues and observations, the final verdict reached by the class of '61 is that our four years at NAHS have been the most memorable and rewarding ever.

JUNIOR CLASS

Boys!
Love & Luck
Maturity (Sport)

The Senior Class would like to express its appreciation to those who were in a large measure responsible for making the publication of our yearbook possible.

We would like to thank Mr. Brassard, our faculty advisor, who has given much time and effort in making this yearbook a success.

Our thanks goes to Mr. Clark, Mr. Regan and the faculty for their cooperation.

We want to thank the townspeople who so generously supported us, and without whose aid this edition would not have been possible.

Our gratitude goes to Mr. Rowan and the Taylor Publishing Company for their assistance in meeting the deadline dates.

Our appreciation is extended to the Loring Studio and their staff for their prompt and efficient services.

We thank Miss Erving for her assistance in helping us to revise our work.

We extend our thanks to the yearbook staff and especially, the editors, who devoted many hours after school working toward making our yearbook a success.

Finally we want to say thanks to the undergraduates who have been generous in their financial support.
